

Abstract from www.gemstones-guide.com/tourmaline

Alexandrite like Tourmaline

An extremely rare variety has been reported that exhibits a color change when observed in daylight and artificial light. The usual change is a yellowish to brownish-green daylight color and an orange-red or orangey-red color under artificial light.

Abstract from

<https://www.cigem.ca/429.html>

A variety of Tourmaline known as color change Tourmaline is rare and valuable because it is considered a collectors item. It appears yellowish to brownish green in daylight and orange red under incandescent light.